DIED

At the Westside Dry Goods Store on the evening of Saturday, the 29th September, of general depravity, OLDMAN CREDIT after a brief(?) illness of about five years. In life he was a fraud and deceitful from the beginning. He robbed his best friends and lied about it. Like Peck-sniff's horse he was immense in promise but not much to perform.

Procrastination was his bosom friend and he walked arm in arm with deadbeats. Now that he is buried may he so continue TO LIE. He will be agreeably missed at the Westside, and already Spot Cash has taken his place and is breaking the record on low prices. He is everybody's friend and hopes permanently to reside in our fair city and will be found at the Westside dispensing genuine good value in Dry Goods, Waterproofs, Manties, Capes, Jackets, Umbrellas, Etc., Etc. He will gladly prescribe for all requiring his services without Bankrupting their Exchequer.

The Passing of Summer

"The melancholy days are here, the saddest of the year," but to many they usher in a season which might most appropriately be termed the "gladdest of the year": the season of social festivities, balls, parties, etc.

To us it means the arrival of the "Dress Suit Season," and, by the way, speaking of dress suits reminds us: Our facilities for catering to this most important branch of the trade have never been better. We have imported this season a rich range of the most select and correct "full dress" fabrics. We make it a point to intrust this class of work to only the most competent workmen, consequently we produce garments which are in every sense of the word "high class;" faultless in fit, in appearance graceful and elegant.

We respectfully request the consideration of all good dressers at this the advent of the Dress Suit Season,

FORMALLY OPENED.

The Fall Exhibition is Thrown Open to the Public This Afternoon.

Rain Puts a Damper on the Sports—A Fairly Large Attendance.

A finishing touch here, an extra piece of bunting there and parting embellishing additions everywhere, made the sum total of the work at the fair buildings last evning and this morning. Superintendent Lambert was on the run, passing judgment on the appearance of each display completed, as the owner wished to know whether it was in accordance with the written law and not likely to offend the artistic eye of the directorate. In this way each of the stalls gradually assumed a bright, holiday garb, composed of flowers, greenery and festooning. The majority of the exhibitors manifested considerable discretion in leaving this decorative work in the more experienced and delicate hands of ladies, several of whom could be seen at work last evening till the hour arrived for closing the building. It is on this point that the great unofficial but all powerful judge, the public, will have to decide and award the prize offered by the association, of which the following are the particulars: "For the most artistically arranged exhibit in the manufactures department." First prize, a piece of plate valued at $20; second prize, a piece of plate valued at $25; third prize, a piece of plate valued at $20; fourth prize, a piece of plate valued at $15—to be decided by ballot by visitors to the exhibition. As each person enters the admission gate a blank will be given and a request made to select the most artistic exhibit and to deposit the vote before leaving the grounds. Visitors can only vote for one exhibit. At the close of the exhibition the exhibit that receives the greatest number of votes will be awarded first prize, the next greatest second, and so on."

There is quite a contest for the prizes, and the public will have no easy task to determine upon the most deserving where there are so many.

In addition to the cloak and parcel room opened at the entrance, there is also a quiet nook reserved on the second floor and called the W. C. T. U. Rest, where the visitors, tired with the rush and crowd, can drop in for a restful five minutes. The rest is next to Waitt's music stand, which is even ahead of former years, Mr. H. Kent having seen to it that the largest music house in British Columbia is properly represented at the largest fair ever held in British Columbia.

At the other end of this floor is the floral exhibit, which had only been finally arranged late yesterday afternoon. It was immediately judged, and the prize list appended speaks for itself as to the most deserving exhibits. To the uninitiated in the beauties of the floral kingdom it seems as if there could be no "best" or "second best" in that glorious looking collection, as the whole is one mass of beauty, but one is brought back to the world by the professional knowledge of the judges, who can detect signs of superiority in some of these plants, all of which seem so beautiful. Among the successful ones is to be noted Mr. J. T. Higgins. To those who know this gentleman and what a hard, ceaseless worker he is, his success will be deemed well deserved. A greater number of men of his stamp would do more to uproot the Chinese gardener here than loads of legislation. Mr. H. D. Helmcken has secured several prizes for the products of his splendid gardens, and among the other prize winners from the ranks of enthusiastic lovers of flowers are Mrs. D. R. Harris, Mrs. J. S. Bowker, W. Newbury and others, while G. A. McTavish and P. T. Johnston share between them the professional honors.

The agricultural and garden produce is spread over a good deal of space, but it is not as large as it ought to be. The judges are busy in that department today, as they are in all branches.

Among the home made preserves Mrs. Brownlee makes an elaborate display, taking up an entire stand with her collection of jams, jellies, fruits preserved whole, a variety of sauces, and principally salmon preserved in tomato sauce. The whole is tastefully set out in a rustic arbor.

Mr. Pendray has a second stand adjoining containing vinegars, malt, white wines, fancy soaps and a dozen household roquisites. He intends having a guessing match this year also on the number of pounds in a large block of soap.

The B. C. Pottery company have confined themselves this year to the practical matters of their business, so that while the heavy pipes may be interesting to engineers and mechanical men, they will not attract so much attention as the ornamental exhibits of former years.

M. R. Smith's collection is also equal to former years and looks just as attractive.

Mr. Paleoner has a couple of young ladies dispensing temperance beverages, and Pollock & Love have another who presides at the souvenir counter.

D. R. Ker has retained another young lady, who will officiate in the wheat arbor. This little retreat has been made very cozy with rugs, couch and chairs. There is also a stove, on which a pan of rolled oats is cooking, and which is served out in small basins with cream to all visitors. The Victoria Roller Mills will have a staff at work baking biscuits and hot cakes for both the comfort and enlightenment of the public.

Beneath the arch of "peace and plenty," erected by Mr. Rithet, the visitor is confronted with a life sized plaster cast of "Aphrodite," the work of Mr. E. A. Harris, of this city, whose productions in this direction and also in sculpture from the virgin marble have already won him a prominent position in this branch of art. The figure is characterized by an easy pose, in the act of drawing a Cupid's bow, with her eyes directed at the object which she intends to influence by her missile of love. The work has been in course of construction for a period of two years, having first to be made in clay and then recast in plaster, after which the more delicate contours and outlines had to be more or less modified. The attitude is somewhat of that of Venus de Milo, from which it was more or less copied, the drapery of course being omitted. The arms are something in the same position as treated by Thorwaldsen, only that artist represented the goddess in the act of pouring water into a vessel. Although the hair is more or less a reproduction of the Venus de Milo, the face is entirely original, the expression being of a sweet, pleasing and dignified type, with the typical Greek nose, rounded cheeks and well curved lips, the whole, with the delicate and perfectly formed figure, amply bearing out the fact that she is meant to represent the goddess of love.

THE FORMAL OPENING.

The rain came on most inopportunely this morning, tending to have a dampening effect in more senses than one. Notwithstanding this, however, the general interst in the fair was undiminished. His Honor the Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Dewdney had a private inspection previous to the opening ceremony; they were attended by President Dr. Milne and a number of the directors and officials of the fair. The distinguished visitors were both surprised and pleased at what they saw in all departments.

Shortly before three o'clock Dr. Milne introduced the opening proceedings, as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Before asking his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor to address you and declare the 18th exhibition of the British Columbia Exhibition open, I will ask your attention to some remarks I wish to make in reference to our exhibition and the products of the soil and the manufacture shown at this time. I may further be permitted to draw a comparison of this year's exhibit with former ones. The annual Agricultural Exhibition held year after year cannot but have a good effect in many ways upon the community. Besides drawing together the usual number of exhibitors and sight seers it has most beneficial results, bringing about healthy competition, which is essential to any community or province in its onward progress. The annual fair is an educator of the best kind, and one cannot visit such an exhibition without obtaining some benefit or profiting in some way. We cannot expect to please every critical eye as every man finds his own hobby slighted, and is further distressed by finding some features which he thinks should have been omitted. We claim for this exhibition, the 18th of our society, that the exhibits in all the departments excel any year in the history of the association. Our entries are double those of last year, and show a noted improvement in the products of the soil, while the live stock exceeds in number and excels in quality. In fact in all departments the display is much larger, and one cannot particularize. The strongest feature seems to be in the agricultural department. The [illegible] while that of fruit is excellent. One exhibitor shows 47 varities of apples from his own farm [illegible] to any country. The other varieties of fruit shown indicate that the climate of the Pacific slope is suitable for the production of all kinds of fruit. The verdict given by those who see the grain, roots and vege-

DAY'S EVENTS IN CALIFORNIA

Right of Citizenship Extended to Sailors in the American Navy.

The American Protective Association in San Francisco—Other News.

San Francisco, Oct. 2.—S. D. Worden, who is confined in the county jail awaiting trial for train wrecking, has received several communications threatening him with violence because of publications stating that he contemplated making a confession.

S. Wilson, state representative of the A. P. A., in an address before the Methodist Ministers' association, said that the aim of the A. P. A. was to arouse Americans to a realization of their duties as citizens and interest them in taking a stand to preserve America for its natural heirs. The association adopted resolutions expressing sympathy with any movement that curtails the political power of the Catholic church in the politics of this state and nation.

In compliance with a recent act of congress Secretary Herbert has promulgated a general order which gives to sailors of the United States navy the right of citizenship. The order sets forth an act of congress giving to enlisted men of the navy the right of citizenship after five years service without any previous declaration, the same as provided for in the case of the United States army and marine corps. The granting of this suffrage to the United States navy will permit about two-fifths of the enlisted men to become citizens, and already a large number have procured their citizenship papers.

Charles A. Jonas, a liquor dealer of this city, who is an aspirant for nomination as supervisor before the Republican convention, alleges that he paid Michael Dunn, one of Colonel Burns' lieutenants, the sum of one thousand dollars to secure the nomination, and that he now finds he has been swindled. He promises to make it lively for Mr. Dunn should his money not be returned promptly. An investigation by the grand jury may possibly take place, when startling disclosures are expected.

About nine o'clock last night a bright light was seen from Benicia, when on investigation proved to be a fire on the ranch of one of the oldest residents of this county, Mr. Patrick Morris. This morning a neighbor visited the place and found all the buildings except the house totally destroyed and the body of Patrick Morris lying on the ground with a bullet through his head. For the last few years Morris has been financially troubled, and that together with financial troubles had unbalanced his mind, so that he evidently committed the act himself, as all the circumstances showed plainly that he had committed suicide after setting fire to the premises.

P. M. Pratt, the assistant general superintendent of the Southern Pacific railway company, will retire from the company's service in the course of a few days in pursuance of orders received from his superiors a few days ago. Mr. Pratt's retirement has created a big surprise.

New evidence has come to light against the Sacramento train wrecker Worden. A boy named Alfred Weston claims that on the day the train was wrecked he was on his way from Sacramento to Davisville and that as he was entering upon the bridge to cross over he was stopped by a band of men, one of whom he previously identified as Worden, and ordered to go back. Instead of doing so he lay on the tules and was an eye witness to the whole affair of wrecking the train.

Within the past two months two plants have been established in this city for bottling eastern beer, and the brewers of Milwaukee and St. Louis are endeavoring to compete with local brewers by supplying bottled beer to families, hotels and restaurants at the same price per dozen as that charged for local beer.

A report has been in circulation to the effect that the Pacific Mail and Occi[illegible] had consolidated their interests in the trans-Pacific business. The steamship officials, however, deny the story. Alexander Center, general agent of the Pacific Mail, was seen in reference to the matter. "There is absolutely nothing in the story that the companies have combined," he declared emphatically. "I have not even heard any talk of such a thing and you can say that nothing of the sort has been thought of."

Bank Wrecker R. H. Macdonald, jr., was to have been tried to-day on a charge of embezzlement, but the case was postponed owing to the defendant's illness.

Adolph Sutro and other Populists recently brought suit against P. Dolan for calling the local club the "People's Party." Judge Sewell to-day decided the case, holding that there was no proprietory rights in party names and that any persons could call themselves by whatsoever names they wanted to.

The thirty-fifth annual session of the grand lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, convened in Oakland at 10 o'clock this morning. Grand Chief Templar Theo. [illegible] was assisted by a full corps of grand officers. There are about 250 delegates present from all parts of the state. The morning session was devoted to conferring the grand lodge degree on about 45 candidates.

INTERNATIONAL TYPO UNION.

Forty-Second Convention to Meet Next Week — President Prescott's Report.

Effect of Machinery on the Trade —Two Branches of the Union Proposed.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—One week from to-day the forty-second annual convention of the International Typographic Union will open at Louisville, Ky. It will be the largest convention in the history of this noted trades organization, delegates having been elected from every district in the United States and Canada. The deliberations of the congress, moreover, will be of unprecedented importance from the fact that the effect that the rapid adoption of typesetting machines and other matters of vital interest to the fraternity will be considered and acted upon. An advance proof of the annual report of President W. B. Prescott, of Indianapolis, which will be presented on the opening day of the convention, reached this city to-day. It deals at length with a score of questions affecting the fraternity, and incidentally of interest to the world of trades unionism at large. Touching upon "Machines and Their Effect," President Prescott will say: "Coincident with, and perhaps in a measure attributable to, the depression through which the world has been passing, machines were introduced in large numbers throughout the country. Based on the most reliable information obtainable, it is a conservative statement to say that these devices—of which there are about 1450 in operation, according to the various manufacturers—have deprived 3500 of our members of employment. True to the history and ethics of trades unionism, we have not antagonized their introduction, but have, with some reluctance, it may be, readily formulated scales and entered into agreements suited to the changed conditions. Many new questions have and will arise to harass and aggravate us, and in dealing with them it will benefit us and the future of the craft to be deliberate, accepting the inevitable and securing the very best terms possible. It would be a foolish invasion of irrefutable facts to close our eyes to the inevitable truth that machines for a time are placing us at a dicided disadvantage in dealing with employers. This too can only be minimized by the application of the basic principle of unionism—hearty acquiescence in the majority's will. It has ben advocated in some quarters that the International Union secure control of patents of existing machines or offer inducements to inventors for the invention of new ones, renting them to publishers and others. This may be dismissed as chimerical. The manufacturers of one of the most successful machines on the market expended about one million dollars before any financial return was forthcoming, and it is thought this concern is even now preventing, to it, disastrous competition only on account of its immense capital and consequent ability to take advantage of legal technicalities or defend its supposed rights under our patent laws. Owing to the acute inventive genius of the age the life of a machine is problematical, and it would take an accumulation of capital far beyond our powers to successfully undertake the manufacture of one and maintain its supremacy. Amid the darkness and gloom that surrounds the introduction of machines it is pleasing to know that in the majority of instances employers have shown a disposition to engage their old employes as operators, thus effecting the least possible disturbance in the personnel of the affected unions. While unable to condone any local union regulation which sought to deprive international card holders of their legal rights, what influence your officers have had has been exercised in urging employers to forego the importation of staffs, and advising unions to impress this upon their members, even going to the extent of urging the adoption of particularly liberal students' scales in order to attain this end. In some instances these suggestions were not favorably considered, with obvious results. It is hoped that similar mistakes will not be made in the future, and it is thought a strong recommendation emanating from the convention will tend to their avoidance."

In his general introduction President Prescott will deal in still more emphatic language with the same subject, as follows: "While we may with pardonable pride congratulate ourselves on the splendid demonstration of stability and virility made by our organization, it would be an ineffectual and cowardly evasion of a manifest duty on our part to assume that under existing circumstances this will continue. We should be directing our best thought to devising ways and means of meeting the changed conditions resultant from machinery. There is at present no large demand for re-construction, but grumbling is heard, and, deplore it as we may, the time is not far distant when heed will have to be paid to the sentiment desiring a measure of autonomy for each sub-division of labor in the newspaper and book-making industries. The most ardent admirer of the solidity of labor must admit that our fellow craftsmen are not prepared for it yet. It will be the part of wisdom to recognize this feeling and shape our courses accordingly. In the large cities now—and it will be true of the smaller ones in a short time—newspapers are entirely machine composed. As a consequence the affinity between newspaper and book and job printers will be greatly lessened by reason of the almost total dissimilarity of working methods. If this is not apparent to all now it will be when there arises a class of operators, as there inevitably will, that knows nothing whatever of the handicraft of typesetting. Despite this, it is essential and of the utmost importance that these elements should not assume an attitude of hostility towards each other, as incalculable injury will result if such an event should occur. Warring labor organizations inflict hardships on the workers only. Charged as we are with the duty of maintaining the dignity and integrity of our craft and leaving to those who come after us the best possible conditions, it behooves us to consider how this reconstruction can be brought about. It should be unequivocally and emphatically understood that any attempt at secession will be fought with all the vigor and energy which the organization possesses. The interests involved are many, and it would be suicidal to permit any element or class to obtain strategical positions which would make it a dictator. It is palpable that a semblance of a helpful organization can only be maintained by harmonious action after calm and dispassionate deliberation on the situation. While, as before stated, there is no crying necessity for an immediate change, we can profitably discuss the future of our craft and organization. To my mind the best interests of all will be subserved by the creating of divisions, one branch comprehending all those employed on newspapers, another composing trades that enter into the manufacture of books and are required in the production of job work, all to be embraced in one general organization whose chief function will be to disburse benefits and give effect to necessary regulations for offensive and defensive purposes. While this will to a great extent be a matter of evolution, I submit that we have a difficult problem, and in endeavoring to reach a satisfactory solution the best thought and the brightest minds within our ranks will have to be impressed into service."

President Prescott will pay his respects to the Printers' Protective fraternity, while avoiding naming it directly, in the following forcible style:

"Last year your officers were authorized to expend a considerable sum in making an effort to extirpate a nefarious gang of pariahs, led by as degraded and malignant a set of spirits as ever disgraced the human race, and something was done in the direction indicated. But the utter obsequiousness and servility of these people, together with the overpowering commercial stagnation, soon convinced your officers and the unions most directly interested that a further expenditure would be a waste of energy and money, and the attempt was abandoned."

Notwithstanding the severity and widespread influence of the recent period of depression, President Prescott will say that the membership of the organization has increased during the past year by over one thousand, exclusive of one thousand German speaking printers, who affiliated in accordance with the agreement approved by the plebiscite. Nearly every principal city in the country is represented by the charters issued during the past year. Financially the union is in excellent shape, the general fund continuing to accumulate. Despite the prevailing conditons of the past year the receipts have more than equalled the expeditures. Reference is made to the failure of the Indianapolis bank, in which the funds of the union were deposited, and it is figured out that after the final dividend is declared the union will sustain a net loss of $12,000. With the idea of again reducing this amount suit has been brought aginst the directors as individuals, and the union is believed to have an excellent case. The report will deal with the pressmen's imbroglio, with the condition of the printers' home at Colorado Springs and with the question of shorter hours. On the latter question the report will refer to the defeat last year on a vote of the membership on the proposition making nine hours a day's work. On this point President Prescott will say:

"It is evident that the causes which go to make shorter hours such a necessity at this time also serve to impart hope to the opposition, and should warn us that adequate preparation is more necessary than ever. In a business where the profits are not usually inordinate, and in which the cost of material and rent are such potent factors in the cost of production, it is futile to suppose that employers will make a change so long as there is a seeming opportunity for successful resistance. Therefore it will be a duty to formulate some plan for submission to the membership which contains, as a pre-requisite to the adoption of a shorter working day, a means for accumulating a large fund for the prosecution of the fight. The most cursory observer of recent events in the labor world must be convinced that to overlook this most essential feature will be a prelude to a worse state than the existing one. Though the industrial outlook is not an encouraging one just now, yet this is the proper time to make preparation. Now is the time to buckle on our armor and prepare for the fray."

Great Discoveries.

The astronomer who discovers a new star, the scientist who finds a new force, or the geologist who alights upon a new species of fossil, becomes deservedly famous, but the actual good such discoveries do is nothing when compared to the finding of a medicine which is an infallible cure for certain diseases. Such a discovery was made nearly half a century ago by an eastern gentleman named Perry Davis, and his preparation is now known to the world as PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER. It is a sure cure for Diarrhoea, Cramps, Cholera Morbus, Cholera, and indeed all bowel complaints. 25c. only for Big 2 oz. bottle.

EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON.

Probabilities of Him Being a Candidate in 1896.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 2.—The arrangements for ex-President Harrison's participation in the state campaign are about completed, although no formal announcement will be made for a couple of days. It is understood that the ex-president will make one speech in this city and one each at the two extremes of the state, Fort Wayne at one end and Vincennes or Evansville at the other. This plan of campaign has been so laid out as to enable the ex-president to deliver brief addresses from the rear end of his car at innumerable points, as was done by ex-Senator Thurman and Senator Hill during the memorable campaign of 1894 in this state, and which was demonstrated to be an exceedingly effective mode of arousing enthusiasm at scores of places where time would not permit of the speakers taking part in a regular demonstration. It can be stated upon good authority that unless he yields to a strong pressure that is being brought to bear from New York, Illinois, Wisconsin and other states, General Harrison will not make a single speech outside of Indiana this fall. With the astuteness of an experienced politician and statesman he is perfectly willing to let Governor McKinley and ex-Speaker Reed do all the "swinging of the circle" this year, especially as he believes that the general prospect for Democratic success in the hitherto doubtful states is so remote that no extraordinary effort on the part of the Republican party will be necessary to insure victory in November. Next year, however, when the country will be on the eve of its presidential nominating conventions, the eloquence of the ex-president is not unlikely to electrify at least one city of every state north of the almost universal Mason and Dixon line. General Harrison is having constructed a large porch and front extension immediately below the windows of his spacious drawing room fronting on Delaware street, but he laughingly dispels the suggestion that this is intended as a kind of barricade to prevent in 1896 a repetition of the scenes of 1888 and 1892, when his residence was so besieged by the crowds that ingress or egress was impossible.

ONLY A WORD OR TWO.

The Mothers Most Interested.

Babies and Lactated Food

Just a few words to-day, dear mothers, on a subject that you are much interested in, and on which much of your happiness depends.

Are you aware of the fact that thousands of mothers in Canada—your relatives, friends and neighbors, have to thank Lactated Food for what it has done for their babies?

Many pale faced, drooping, puny and half dead babies have been made strong, bright, charming and good natured by Lactated Food, after all other forms of nourishment had failed. Hundreds of mothers have written to the manufacturers of the great Lactated Food, and honestly confessed that their babies would have died if Lactated Food had been wanting.

To-day the attention of the whole medical world is directed to this wonderful health producing food, and our ablest doctors gladly advise mothers to adopt its use. Why will mothers and nurses use inferior and dangerous foods when the Lactated saves life, gives health, strength and heartiness? Baby's life is always protected when Lactated Food is used.

"I was suffering from what is known as Bright's disease for five years, and for days at a time I have been unable to straighten myself up. I was in bed for three weeks; during that time I had leeches applied and derived no benefit. Seeing Hood's Sarsaparilla advertised in the papers I decided to try a bottle. I found relief before I had finished taking half of a bottle. I got so much help from taking the first bottle that I decided to try another, and since taking the second bottle I feel as well as ever I did in my life." GEO. MERRETT, Toronto, Ont.

Lunacy Increasing in Ireland—A New Fish Food.

London, Oct. 1.—The delegation of Americans who have agreed to testify against Col. Jacques, who for years has been engaged in an effort to secure the return of the Townley estate to American heirs, are expected to reach here to-day. The prosecution is mainly being pushed by the present owners of the estate, and they are determined to send him to penal servitude.

The official report of the government inspectors of lunatics in Ireland, which was issued to-day, noted a great increase of insanity in that portion of Great Britain. This is ascribed in part to the innutritious diet of the poorer population, the immoderate use of adulterated stimulants, the acute agricultural depression so widely experienced in recent years, and the great metal strain and harassing anxieties that have followed in their wake. This report, issued as it is under government sanction, will probably be used as a strong campaign card by the Nationalists when the next general election is in order.

"Fischwurst" is the latest innovation on the food supply of Great Britain. It is a new discovery of the Germans, and is a sausage composed of fish, grated fine and mixed with herbs and fat. For years past millions of tons of fish have been wasted in England because the market could not be reached quick enough or because the middlemen deliberately destroyed it to keep up prices. The new discovery in the way of food, however, will afford a market for all the fish brought into the country or caught in the domestic rivers, while at the same time it will place a cheap and at the same time healthy addition to the food supply at the command of the poor.

The Parnellites have issued a manifesto in which other wings of the Irish are attacked. It says the Irish people who went wrong in the last election are not likely to lend their aid to a government that has confessed its inability to do anything for Ireland. An early dissolution of parliament is predicted.

The Times' Paris correspondent says the issue of securities of the new Panama Canal company to the amount of thirty million francs has not proved successful. The new company, however, will be constituted at once.

A HERMIT DOG.

Its Quarters Taken Up On Edinburgh Castle Rock.

Edinburgh is responsible for one very good dog story already. "Greyfriars" Bobby has taken his place as one of the celebrities of the city already, and his portrait in bronze near to the entrance to Greyfriars churchyard is a memorial to canine fidelity. The present story is of a different nature. It relates (says the Scotsman) to a retriever bitch which has taken up its abode in a small cavern in one of the most inaccessible places of the north face of the Castle Rock. Where the creature came from—whether it is the victim of an eviction or merely one of those waifs with which all large cities abound, and on which the annual muzzling regulation falls so heavily—no one knows. The present ranger of the gardens says that it was there when he came last September. Shortly after he entered upon his duties the ranger was very much surprised to see one evening a small black retriever dog standing with every sense of security on the top of one of the high cliffs of the Castle Rock. He saw it afterwards frequently, and being an old keeper he began to take an interest in the animal. The spot where it has taken up its habitation is about twenty yards below the castle wall, and at the place there is a cavern formed by an overhanging rock. How deep it is can only be guessed. Not very long since one of the ordnance men in surveying the face of the rock went down that way at the end of a rope, and reported that a warning growl from somewhere in the depths of the den suggested to him the propriety of not probing the secret further. The ranger noticed that as the dusk began to fall the dog, which is very shy, appeared on the cliff, and, waited there until the bell had rung for visitors to quit the gardens. He even states that the creature waited until it heard the click of the lock of the gate. Then by a sinuous and dangerous path leading towards the wooded bank at the east side of the rock it would quickly descend, forage about the gardens for scraps of bread and sandwiches left by the visitors, make its way to the Castle terrace gate, where it would get below the bars and out into the city, where its foraging would no doubt be continued. It must have returned by the same way in the early morning before the gates were opened, for the ranger never saw it enter. Some time since a drain was being laid along the King's Stables road, and the ranger told the story of the dog to the night watchman there, and asked him to be on the lookout for it. The watchman saw the dog frequently push its way out and in below the gate, and it seemed to have no difficulty in doing so. It is not a large retriever, being, as it is described, three parts retriever and one part spaniel. The ranger mentioned the matter also to the officers of the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, and there was some talk by them of shooting the dog lest it might be starving and go mad. The ranger, however, was able to assure them that the dog was in good condition, with a clean and healthy coat, and that so far it had done no harm. One night a few followers it had brought about the gardens caused some inconvenience. And being accustomed to such quarters, and having evidently lost themselves among the rocks, the strange[illegible] all night in their forlorn condition. The story of the Castle Rock retriever will no doubt attract attention, and what may be the fate of the creature thereafter it is difficult to say. It may be hoped, however, that no attempt to shoot or injure this interesting solitude loving dog will be made. It is certain such would be very much resented by the public at large.

AN ELECTRICAL DANGER.

A Boy Meets Death in a Railing Connected With a Live Wire.

In the presence of more than three hundred persons Daniel Mullane, seventeen years old, was shocked to death by electricity while standing on the steps of 203 Chrystie street, says a New York paper. Two wires run from a pole standing in front of the building to an electric supply box which stands on a tin cornice over the basement and under the first floor window of the tenement. From the supply box the wires extend to an electrical meter just inside the restaurant, and from the meter one wire runs to a fan resting on the shelf in front of the saloon and the other extends along a beam supporting the ceiling to two fans at the rear end of the place. The wires inside the saloon are covered with wooden safety covers, and outside the insulation was supposed to protect them and prevent all danger.

It was the contact of the tin cornice with the iron rail of the stoop which caused young Mullane's death. The boy [illegible] electrical supply box, resting on the cornice of the basement next door, suddenly blazed up. It lighted the street brilliantly for nearly two blocks, and the people came rushing to the spot until the street was crowded.

Young Mullane ran round the steps of No. 203 just as Charles Strahm, the landlord, who lives on the first floor, opened a shutter opposite the burning box. Mullane had stepped on the first step of the stairway when Strahm saw him.

"For God's sake, keep your hands off that rail!" shouted Strahm.

The warning came too late, for Mullane had placed both hands on the rail of the steps to watch the fire. Instantly his form grew rigid. He straightened up to his full length and braced back, as if trying to pull away from the iron rod. A man on the sidewalk grasped Mullane by the waist and tried to pull him away, but he, too, stiffened out, and, so far from accomplishing his object, he was not able to loosen his hold on the boy he was trying to save. A second man grasped the would-be rescuer and succeeded in drawing both him and the boy away. Both men were hurled across the street. As soon as Mullane's hands were released he fell upon the sidewalk. An ambulance was summoned from the Governeur hospital, but the boy died before it arrived. His hands were swollen and his face and body were bleached almost to a snowy whiteness. The two men who had been hurled across the street were not seriously hurt. The electrical supply box on the cornice kept on blazing and snapping out a thousand sparks, which sprinkled the sidewalk in front of the restaurant until the current was shut off by an employe of the United States Illuminating company, which supplied the power.

The same box burned out two months ago, and the insulation, it is said, has repeatedly worn from the wires, so that any one grasping the rail leading to the entrance was likely to receive a shock. In wet weather this danger was increased, and repeated complaints had been made by the tenants, who had constantly to be on their guard while passing in and out of the house.

The Daily Times.

THE TWO POLICIES.

It requires a great deal of hardihood, but not an overwhelming power of intellect, to repeat day after day with parrot-like fidelity the assertion that the Tories have a policy while the Liberals have none. There is also implied in this line of tactics the idea that the people generally are very poorly supplied with intelligence. This assumption of public ignorance seems to be peculiarly necessary to Tory organs at the present juncture, when events are conspiring to discredit the Tory policy and make popular that which the Liberals have declared for. The great majority of the people now see clearly what they did not before appreciate—that the N. P. takes out of their pockets not only taxes for revenue but a much greater sum for a bonus to manufacturers. Nothing more than a clear understanding of this is needed to overthrow the system of taxation for the benefit of manufacturers and substitute the system of taxation for revenue only which the Liberals favor. The necessity for a change is emphasized by the fact recently made evident, that while the tariff is taking from the people millions of dollars in the shape of undue profits to the "protected," it is actually falling short of necessities in the revenue line. Last year there was a heavy deficit and this year there will in all likelihood be a heavier one, and the people may well ask themselves why a portion of the enormous tribute they are compelled to pay to a favored few should not be diverted to the filling up of the hole which Toryism has made in the national finances. They will be forced to make up the deficits in one way or other in the days to come. The Tories propose that they shall do so by extra taxation to be levied in an insidious way; the Liberals propose to help the taxpayer by removing the burden of his tribute and having imposed on him only the duty of contributing to the exchequer The difference is clearly comprehended by the people, and all the prating of the Tory organs goes for nothing. Moreover, the Liberals propose to do away with such unnecessary enactions as were used to meet the seven hundred and odd thousands of dollars wasted corruptly in the Connolly contracts, the $300,000 of illegitimate profits on the Curran bridges, the $600,000 wasted on the Tay canal, and so forth. In short, the Liberal policy is that taxes shall be imposed for revenue only, and not for the purpose of bonussing manufacturers or finding boodle for friends of the government. In these respects it is diametrically opposed to the Tory policy, of which the country is tired.

Bankrupt Stock of Tweeds
West of England Tweeds fifty cents per yard, originally cost $1.25 per yard, at Russell & McDonald's.

PROTECTION AND COMBINES.

Protection not only robs the workingman of British Columbia by compelling him to pay the duty and a profit on the duty on home and foreign made goods alike, but by building up monopoly it takes from him higher profits on all the goods he may need to use than he would have to pay under free trade, and that without benefiting the retailer who sells to him. The great majority of retailers are not importers. Our protective tariff, hedged about with restrictions which in their operation have the effect of discriminating against small importations, effectually prevents them from being such. By making small importations unprofitable protection places the retail dealer at the mercy of combinations of large importers and manufacturers. Dulness of trade (the result of protection) and competition among the retail dealers themselves operate to reduce their profits to the lowest point without affording them any relief from importers and manufacturers.

Home made goods being sold as high as imported ones, manufacturers, through the operations of rings and combines, are still able to dictate to retailers the profits upon what they sell them.

For instance, a box stove of a standard pattern made by a firm of Hamilton, Ontario, sold in that province in 1865 at seven dollars. After the abrogation of the reciprocity treaty with the United States in that year the price was gradually increased, until the same stove sold by the same dealer in 1889 at eleven dollars and seventy-five cents. Yet the profit to the dealer on this article was as great in 1865 as in 1889. Although the stove manufacturer made stoves as cheaply in 1865 as in 1889, they were able by an agreement among themselves, which the tariff by excluding American competition enabled them to carry out, to pocket four dollars and seventy-five cents on this kind of stove in addition to their former profit under reciprocity, while the retailer was compelled to handle it for the same money.

Among civilized peoples sugar is an article of common consumption next in importance to bread. Without taking into consideration the fact that by giving exclusive possession of our market to our manufacturers we place them in a position to compel us to buy sugars of less strength than those sold in the free trade market of Great Britain, and at a higher price, we enable them to dictate to our retailers the profits at which they must handle them. Sugar is an article which every grocer must keep, even if he sell it without any profit, and this is exactly what the refiners of Canada have compelled the grocers of Canada to do. In 1887 the refiners entered into an agreement which compelled retailers to sell Canadian sugars at a higher price than foreign sugars could be sold for at a profit after paying the duty, and they further bound themselves to refuse to furnish any dealer with Canadian sugars who engaged in the sale of foreign sugars. So general was the outcry against this tyrannical robbery, which sought to compel the grocers of Canada to sell the sugars of the combine without any remuneration, that a syndicate was formed in Montreal for the importation of Scotch and German sugars, and so extensive was their operations that the refiners found it necessary to furnish sugars to any who chose to buy at so low a rate as to drive the foreign sugars out of the market and bring the refractory importers into line. But the sugar combine did not give up their efforts to take to themselves the profits of retailing sugars in addition to that of refining them. They industriously set themselves to the task of forming a "grocers' association," which by being retained under the control of the combine could be made use of for the sale of sugars at the refiners' terms, and at the same time be recouped for their services in selling sugars without profits by increased profits on other goods, such increased profits being solely due to the operations of the association. But the consumers of Canada did not take kindly to this arrangement, and the government in 1888 found it necessary to answer to the popular demand to appoint a commission of inquiry. Mr. Dalton McCarthy quoted from the report of that committee on combinations in groceries and sugars at the last session of the house at Ottawa as follows: "Thus facts prove this grocers' guild, with its several combinations, to be obnoxious to the public interests, in limiting competition, in enhancing prices, and by the familiar use of its growing and facile powers, tending to produce and propagate all the evils of monopoly. Certain dealers are refused admission into its ranks. Others are admitted and afterwards expelled. Others again are placed under its ban, who from conscientious scruples or in a spirit of independence refuse to join them. Merchants who have been buyers on equal terms and with equal facilities as other merchants suddenly find themselves under the power of this combination." In the face of this report from a committee, the creature of a protection parliament, which was placed in power by the contributions of trusts and combines created by protection, this same sugar combine professes to be so disinterestedly anxious for the public welfare as at their own expense to scatter broadcast in the highways and byways of the Dominion illustrated warnings of the terribly hideous microscopic dangers to be discovered in foreign sugars, and modestly advertise their love for the working people of Canada and their desire to pay them high wages by hanging beautiful chromos on some street corners contrasting the ease and comfort of Vancouver refinery employes at $2 with the slavery of Chinese sugar carriers at 10 cents per day. With these facts before them can the workingmen and grocers of Victoria afford to elect to represent them at Ottawa the avowed dupes and tools, if not the partners of this high wage promising mock philanthropy, which unblushingly appeals to prejudice and professes openly solicitude for our welfare that it may secretly rob us? To do so would be, spaniel like, to lick the hand that smites us and to be animated by slavish souls, which prefer bondage and injustice to freedom and right.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

During the trial of the Croasdaile and Hall case, says the Slocan Times, the attorney general gave the people of Kootenay district a most valuable hint. Mr. Wilson had said that Mr. Croasdaile deserved no credit for getting a wagon road built to the Silver King, as the government always built roads which it thought necessary, and would not build any others. "If my learned friend conducted business on these principles," said the attorney-general, "he would not have many clients. Who are those that get favors from governments? Not those who sit down and say nothing. No it is the men who are never tired of pressing their claims on the government; who persevere, in season, and out of season; never let the government hear the last of their demands; these are the men who get favors from governments." After this nobody will be so bold as to say the premier is not a statesman of very large calibre.

Something that the Empire has said in respect of Senator Higgins of Delaware, is represented by the Colonist as being "hard on the Liberals." Nothing that either the Empire or the Colonist could say would be properly described as "hard on the Liberals;" the organs are too weak-minded and too prejudiced to say anything impressive.

Emperor William Says He will be at the Exhibition in 1900.

Paris, Oct. 1.—Gaulois is authority for the statement that the Emperor of Germany recently said to a French gentleman whom he received in Berlin, "I shall meet you again at the Paris exposition in 1900." Replying to an expression of surprise on the part of his auditor, the kaiser added: "I know the charcter of the French. Again I say, I will attend their exhibition and I know what I have to do in order to carry out my intention."

TRAGEDIES IN AUSTRALIA.

A Respected Farmer Commits Murder and Suicide.

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—News of two shocking tragedies in Australia was brought by the Monowai. George Dobson, a highly respected man living near Melbourne, on August 27th, shot a neighbor named Peter Dinsdale, and then cut the throats of his three children. He closed the deed of blood by cutting his throat. It is believed that Dobson was crazed through financial troubles.

Some unknown fiend entered the house of Mrs. Vennel at Maryborough and in the temporary absence of the mother, who is a widow, crushed the heads of her three children. The youngest child, a boy, was dead, and the others will die. The deed was shrouded in mystery. No clue to the perpetrators has been found.

MEN MAY STRIKE.

Judge Jenkins' Decision Reversed by the Court of Appeals.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 2.—The United States court of appeals yesterday reversed, in part, Judge Jenkins' famous decision in the Northern Pacific injunction case, restraining railroad men from striking. In the decision the court holds that it would be an invasion of one's natural liberties to compel him to work or to remain in personal service of another, and adds: "The rule, we think, is without exception that will equally not compel the actual affirmative performance by an employee of merely personal services, any more than it will compel an employer to retain in his personal service one who for no matter what cause is not acceptable to him."

MEXICAN BULL FIGHTERS.

Bulls Cause Pandemonium in an Amphitheatre.

Zacatecas, Mexico, Oct. 2.—Four persons were killed and many others wounded at a bull fight in the little town of Mesquitie in the state of Jalisco, on Sunday. The recent repeal of the anti-bull fighting law in Mexico has given great impetus to this sport, and on nearly every Sunday fights are held throughout the country. The affair at Mesquitie was an amateur and those taking part all resided near the town. For this reason the crowd present was unusually large. Great preparations were made and until the last act the entertainment was a great success. The amateur bull fighters acquitted themselves well with the antiquated animals turned into the ring, and tortured their victims in safety while spectators, a large portion of whom were women, applauded their efforts. The finale was designed to complete their glory. For the first time there was real danger. Two bulls, both wild and vicious, were turned into the ring at once. To kill these was a task designed to bring all the fighters into action at once. The bulls were soon apparently worn out in their efforts to allude or reach the banderillors, who tortured them by forcing into their necks short pointed irons, from which floated gay colored ribbons. First they charged right and left, but the agile banderillors escaped and at last the bull stood at bay. The crowd cheered and again the torturers resumed their efforts. A banderillor approached one of the bulls waving a red cloth. The animal charged him, but he jumped aside, and as the maddened bull passed, drove the iron into the thick skin of his neck. Again the crowd began to applaud, but their bravos were suddenly changed to a cry of warning. The banderillor had forgotten the second bull, which was upon him before he knew it. The animal caught him on his horns, tossed him over his back and before assistance could come, had charged him again. This time the banderillor was down and the maddened brute gored him through. Others ran to the rescue. The bull raised his head with the banderillor impaled on his horns and charged his new foes. In the meantime the first bull had leaped over the barrier separating the ring from the spectators, and caused a panic. Several persons were killed.

FANCY WORK AT THE FAIR.

To the Editor.—On behalf of those ladies who intend exhibiting fancy work at the coming agricultural exhibition I would like to call the attention of the directors to the fact that there is but one class for both professional and amateur workers. It is certainly not justice to those ladies who amid the multiplicity of household cares save a few minutes at a time for fancy work, to be forced to compete in the same class with those who can give their whole time and undivided attention to such things, and have also the resources of a well-appointed fancy store at their command, together with the services of skilful employees who are artists in their line. It is rather poor encouragement to the housewives of Victoria to be told that their work cannot hope to obtain a prize unless it is better than the best fancy store can produce—I will not say import.

CORBETT STILL TALKING.

Boston, Oct. 1.—Corbett in an interview to-day his decision not to meet Fitzsimmons until the latter had met O'Donnell was unaltered. He says as a token of good faith he will deposit five thousand dollars to meet Fitzsimmons should the latter defeat O'Donnell. He further declared that the Olympic club had neither the right nort eh power, as it had threatened, to take the title of championship from him and give it to Fitzsimmons. He added: "Fitzsimmons' talk about claiming the championship in thirty days does not worry me in the least."

New York, Oct. 1.—Bob Fitzsimmons, accompanied by his manager and others, met Brady, Corbett's manager, in the Herald office to-day. Tthey had quite a war of words, during which Arthur Lumley said Corbett was a cur. Brady called Lumley a cur and the men were kept apart with difficulty. Fitzsimmons put up $1,000 to meet Corbett and Brady posted $1,000 for O'Donnell to meet Fitzsimmons. Fitzsimmons sent a letter to Corbett in which he called upon the latter to defend the championship of the world, and notifies him that he has deposited $1,000 to bind the match. He says this is not a question of whether he is a welterweight or middleweight as long as there is a club willing to offer $25,000 for the fight. He refers to his defeat of Maher, Hall and Choynski, and says that if Corbett does not cover the thousand dollers he, Fitzsimons, has deposited, in three days he wiss claim the championship. He adds, he hopes that Corbettwill not lower the $10,000 stake.

THE EASTERN WAR.

An Attack On Pekin Rumored—Japs Continue Silent.

San Francisco, Oct. 2.—H. E. Keller, of Philadelphia, has returned from Tokio, Yokohama, Kobe and other Japanese points, where he has been for three months. "The arsenal at Tokio," he said, "is as busy as it can be and nobody is allowed there. Strict secrecy is preserved. I dined with Iwasaka, the richest man in Japan, who recently gave 500,000 yen or $250,000 to aid the war, and became quite intimate with him, but he told me he could not, acting in accordance with the policy of the Japanese, give any facts about the war. Everywhere I found the same secrecy observed. I frequently met Count Matsuadi, the James J. Blaine of Japan, and ex-prime minister, and his son, with whom I graduated at college. Both told me that the policy was to give nothing out that could give the Chinese an insight into what was being done. Going from Hong Kong to Shanghai I met four English gunners who had been engaged for a Chinese warship at $100 a month, and five years' pay to their families if killed. An English captain was with them who was to receive much greater pay. The Chinese are engaging all the English fighters they are paying them big sum. In Japan it is believed to be the intention to move immediately on Peking and capture it before winter sets in. The Japanese see that they have got to do it quick or it will be much harder later on."

A British naval officer attached to the Chinese naval squadron which was engaged in the fight off the Yalu river has written to the Graphic. In this letter the writer gives additional details of the fighting and says: "On board the warship Chen Yuen the fighting was awful. The decks and the spaces around the guns were strewn with human fragments and three out of five men working a four ton gun were blown up by a shell from the Japanese warship Naniwa. The Chen Yuen arrived at Wei-Aai-Wei the day after the fight in the same condition in which she left the battle. No attempt had been made to wash the blood from her or to remove the corpses which strewed the decks." The writer expresses the opinion that if the European rulers could have seen the decks of the Chen Yuen they would have foresworn war henceforth and forever.

The Times will print a dispatch from Shanghai to-morrow stating that a report is in circulation there that thirty-five thousand Japanese troops have been landed on the Shan Tung coast between the Yellow river and Tientsin.

JUBILEE HOSPITAL DIRECTORS

Report by the Committee Regarding the Proposed Maternity Home.

Suggested That Pemberton Bequest be Used to Build an Operating Room.

The regular monthly meeting of the directors of Jubilee Hospital was held last evening. President Davies occupied the chair and there were present Messrs. W. M. Chudley, Alexander Wilson, Thomas Shotbolt, G. H. Brown, J. S. Yates, J. L. Crimp, Charles Hayward and F. B. Pemberton.

Erskine, Wall & Co. announced the payment of their account to the end of May and asked for prompter payment in the future, as they were supplying the groceries at very low prices. Laid on the table.

The visiting committee reported that repairs recommended by the doctor had been made. Arrangements were being made with the city for disinfecting the clothes at the infectious diseases hospital, that they learned that the old men at present in the infectious diseases ward could be sent to the home at Kamloops. The attention of the city had been called to the necessity of better fire protection. At present there was not enough accommodation for more nurses.

Dr. Richardson also called attention to the necessity of better fire protection, and recommended a larger nursing staff, besides dealing with minor matters.

The reports were received and the action of the president in writing to the council in reference to fire protection and the use of the infectious diseases hospital disinfecting apartment, was endorsed.

Other matters, including fire protection, were referred to the committee for October.

President Davies stated the Hon. Col. Baker had told him that there would be no difficulty in having the old men at present in the hospital removed to the home at Kamloops when it was completed.

A motion was passed asking the city council to relieve the hospital board of the expenses of burying paupers.

The mortgage on the hospital having been paid and the documents now being in the hands of the board, it was decided to have them deposited in the Bank of British Columbia.

The special committee re vegetables reported that the lowest white tender was Mr. G. A. Knight's of $290.25, and the lowest Chinese tender, $215. The committee had been empowered to award the contract to the lowest white tenderer, but under the circumstances they did not wish to take the responsibility.

Mr. Brown moved, seconded by Mr. Hayward, that the contract be awarded to the lowest white tenderer. Mr. Wilson moved, seconded by Mr. Pemberton, that it be awarded to the Chinaman.

The president did not think the amendment was in order, the board having previously voted in favor of white labor.

The motion was laid over.

The Maternity Home committee reported as follows:

To the Board of Directors of Royal Jubilee Hospital:

Gentlemen—The committee appointed by you to take all the tenders for the lying-in hospital into consideration with power to act, beg to report as follows: We took into consideration the tenders as they were originally handed to us, and we came to the conclusion that it would be impossible to carry out the plans in full as drawn by Mr. Teague, without running the hospital into debt. We then called for tenders for the administration block, the main building of the original plan with slight alterations. This we found could be built for the money, namely, $3500, but on consulting medical authorities, we found that such a building as contemplated, was totally inadequate, the accommodation being only sufficient for at the most three patients, and the administration part of the hospital being sufficient for a hospital containing 20 or 25 beds. In accordance with the request of your president, Dr. Richardson gave us all the assistance in his power, and after consulting with other medical gentlemen, he gave us a rough sketch of what he considered was required, as to the way the building should be laid out. The main [illegible] for six beds, each bed having two thousand cubic feet of air, the least space allowed per patient by standard authorities. The hospital, as outlined by him, could, we are inclined to think, be built for the sum allotted but we hardly think that, including heating, we would have quite sufficient to finish with. Dr. Richardson's estimate of the maintenance of the Maternity Home is as follows, based upon previous experience with the Jubilee Hospital and elsewhere:

The least cost of furnishing would not be less than $500. This, however, we consider a matter that could be provided for by outside assistance. The yearly cost of maintenance of the proposed maternity hospital we look upon as a very serious matter with the Jubilee Hospital already in debt and without sufficient funds in view to meet the yearly expenditure of that hospital. We are therefore of opinion that under existing circumstances it would be unwise on your part to enter into this additional expenditure, with no present source of income to meet it with. It has been suggested to our committee, and they have [illegible] ward to the present building. Undoubtedly [illegible] cheaper than a separate building, but the cost of maintenance would be the same, and a larger maternity hospital would soon be required, when this would be relegated to other uses. We may mention that the present heating apparatus of the hospital is not capable of heating any addition such as we make mention of. A suggestion has been made to your committee which we look upon with favor, namely, an addition be made, attached to the present surgical ward, this addition to contain an operating theatre and dressing and instrument rooms, which should be fitted with the lastest anticeptic table. By building this the hospital would be a [illegible] for these purposes would be free for pay patients, the need of more rooms being at present badly felt, the hospital at times being full and applicants having often to wait their turn to get in. Such an addition could no doubt be built for the amount of the late Mr. Pemberton's bequest, and if Mrs. Pemberton could be induced to consent to the appropriation of her former general offer of $1500 to this purpose also, an operating theatre and adjuncts could be built, that would be fully in keeping with the Jubilee Hospital and its reputation as a surgical institution.

F. B. PEMBERTON,
CHARLES HAYWARD,
J. STUART YATES.

After a short discussion the report was laid over until next meeting.

In respect to Erskine, Wall & Co.'s request for the prompter payment of their bills, it was resolved that the directors could not guarantee the payment of their bills every sixty days, as all bills would be paid pro ratio and if Erskine, Wall & Co. wished to do so they could withdraw their contract.

The accounts for September, amounting to $1151 and wages $573, were ordered paid.

There was a discussion as to the best means of preventing "dead beats," as one director put it, from gaining admittance to the hospital but no action was taken.

IMAGINATION CURES.

According to Vaidy, the French army cantonedin Bavaria, after the battle of Austerlitz, had only one hundred sick in a division of eight thousand men, being little more than one in the hundred. When, on the other hand, an army is subject to privations or is discouraged by defeat or want of confidence in its chiefs, the proportion of sick is often fearfully increased. So efficacious is a cheerful state of mind, from the more healthful influence which it diffuses through the frame, that surprising recoveries often happen which can be ascribed to no other cause than this.

A singular but instructive instance fell under the observation of Sir Humphrey Davy, when, in early life, he was assisted by Dr. Beddoes in his experiments on the inhalation of nitrous oxide. Dr. Beddoes having inferred that the oxide must be a specific for palsy, a patient was selected for trial and placed under the care of Davy. Previously to administering the gas, Davy inserted a small thermometer under the tongue of the patient to ascertain the temperature. The paralytic man, wholly ignorant of the process to which he was to submit, but deeply impressed by Dr. Beddoes with the certainty of its success, no sooner felt the theromometer behind his teeth than he concluded the talisman was in operation, and in a burst of enthusiasm declared that he already experienced the effects of its benign influence throughout his body. The opportunity was too tempting to be lost. Davy did nothing more, but desired the patient to return on the following day. The same ceremony was repeated, the same result followed, and at the end of a fortnight he was dismissed cured, no remedy of any kind except the thermometer having been used.

Another instance occurred during the siege of Breda in 1625. When the garrison was on the point of surrendering from the ravages of scurvy, a few vials of sham medicine, introduced by the Prince of Orange's orders as the most valuable and infallible specific, and given in drops as such, produced astonishing results. Such as had not moved their limbs for months before were seen walking in the streets sound, straight and whole, and many who had declared they had been rendered worse by all former remedies recovered in a few days, to their inexpressible joy.—Principles of Physiology—Dr. Andrew Combe.

A FIGHTING ARMY OF FLIES.

To Carry Disease and Death into the Enemy's Camps.

Some amusing particulars of the inventions that have been offered to the French war office since 1871 have recently been published in a French newspaper, the majority of which are about equal to the Laputan scheme for ploughing fields, namely, by sowing acorns in rows and then turning in pigs to root them up. One genius sought a patent for the training of squadrons of horseflies. These auxiliaries were to be fed exclusively on blood served up beneath the delicate epidermis of mechanical figures clothed in the uniform of members of the Triple Alliance, so that when political relations in Europe were strained the flies might be given daily a little of the juice of certain poisonous plants, and on declaration of war be turned out on the path of the enemy.

Another ingenious person proposed a scheme for educating war dogs. In times of peace he would train French dogs to bite lay figures wearing Prussian helmets, in order that on the outbreak of war the kennels of the whole country might be mobilized and let loose on the enemy. Then there are numerous proposals for holding [illegible] ropes attached to cannon balls, and a photographer suggests a novel kind of captive shell, which, breaking over the fortified position of an enemy, would disclose a small camera attached to a parachute. The enemy's fortifications would be instantaneously photographed and the apparatus hauled back by a string, and the negatives developed at leisure. Two ideas are very inhuman. One is a scheme for sending large quantities of poisoned needles, as if in charity, to the enemy's generals, who would, of course, distribute them to the forces, and so poison the unfortunate users; and the other to charge explosive bullets with pepper. Two objects are pursued by the inventor of the pepper; its discharge would blind the enemy, and the great demand for the condiment in time of war would stimulate the trade of the French colonies and increase the revenue of the country. There are also many other equally absurd proposals, such as suggestions for making soup by machinery, growing potatoes on barrack roofs in December and killing whole army corps of Prussians by post—but they are far too numerous to be mentioned.—The Court Journal.

THE USE OF ARMOR.

Besiegers of Aquila Surprised by Men in Coats of Mail.

In Junary, 1799, at the town of Aquila, in the Abruzzo, then held by a garrison of four hundred French troops, the peasants broke into the town, and although they were driven out by the French, they continued to give serious trouble. They even drove the French into the fort and made ready to bombard them with heavy guns. The French were in an awkward position.

Roulert, the officer of the artillery, ransacking his brains for means to send out men to spike the guns on the glacis, under the fire of the insurgents from the neighboring houses, suddenly remembered that he had seen in his magazine some suits of plate armor, and he proposed to try whethr, protected by them, men could not sally out and work in security under the musketry fire. He got together twelve complete suits and dressed out twelve gunners and grenadiers, thus selecting big men, be it remarked. At a certain hour the garrison lifted the covfort opened a steady fire of musketry and of artillry on the lines of the insurgents.

Then out marched the twelve knights of the eighteenth century, much in David's state of mind when he complained that he had not proved his armor. The men carried handspikes, hammers and spikes. Moving, naturally, slowly and awkwardly in their heavy steel mail, still they succeeded in completing their work under a hail of bullets from the insurgents. The scene is described, as we can well believe, to have been most remarkable and to have had something picturesque and almost diabolical about it.

As the mailed figures moved in silence among the guns, their handspikes looking like maces, their silence and the slowness of their actions seemed unnatural under the steady hail of bullets. The insurgents were believed to have thought hell itself had sent forth these extraordinary antagonists, ghosts of a past age; while the French on the ramparts, true to their nature, the first moment of anxiety over, burst into roars of laughter.—Phipps' Marshals of Napoleon.

The Best Medicine.

J. O. WILSON, Contractor and Builder, Sulphur Springs, Texas, thus speaks of Ayer's Pills:

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever tried; and, in my judgment, no better general remedy could be devised. I have used them in my family and [illegible] employes for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge, many cases of the following complaints have been completely and by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Third day chills, dumb ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above."

A BARBAROUS COUNTRY.

How Prisoners are Treated by the Officials of Morocco.

When the prisoner in Morocco hears the doors of the jail close behind him, he knows, if he is poor and without friends, however trivial be the offence for which he has been imprisoned, that he may possibly not leave those walls alive. It is a matter of indifference to the authorities how many are imprisoned, for these wretched captives are no cause of expense to the state. The prisoners have to purchase their own bread and water and to pay their jailers. Many a man imprisoned for some little debt, which he has long ago discharged, is still detained because he is unable to meet the debt he has contracted toward his jailers, and which his enforced captivity daily increases.

In some prisons they are only permitted to receive a supply of fresh water every second day. What amount of suffering this means in an African climate and in the fetid atmospheres of dungeons such as those to be found in Morocco it is difficult for a European to realize. In a Moorish prison the captives sleep half naked on a mud floor; they are all huddled together in one apartment, without distinction as regards crime or innocence, for many are simply thrown into prison on account of their reputed wealth or prosperity by avaricious officials, who by prolonged imprisonment, and sometimes by torture, hope to squeeze money out of them or discover where they have hidden treasure.

Of an evening it is not unusual for the prisoners to be all bound together by a chain passing through an iron collar which each captive wears, thus making it down together. Open and uncleaned necessary for all to rise, or sit, or lie cesspools within the prison add sometimes to the indescribable horror and misery of the place. There is no inspector, no medical attention, no alleviation in sickness. If a man is ill and unable to drag himself to the hole in the wall through which the bread is passed, he must trust to the mercy of his fellows to supply him with food. Only when ... overtakes the poor miserable wretch do the guards desire themselves in their own interests and remove the tortured body, which at length has found relief from its overwhelming sufferings. When a prisoner is an absolute pauper and unable to purchase food, the authorities give him daily a small piece of coarse bread, provided by religious endowment, sufficient to prolong the agonies of starvation.—Earl of Meath in the Nineteenth Century.

THAT TEN CENT FARE

City Council Declare the Tramway Company Acts Illegally in Collecting It.

Douglas Street Sewer Extension Matter Again Comes Up—Point of Order.

All the city aldermen except Ald. Vigelius and Harris were present at last night's meeting. The only matter of importance brought up was the practice of the tramway company of collecting the double fare for the ride to the exhibition grounds, the council taking the stand that it was illegal under the act.

E. Crow Baker, managing director of the Victoria Electric company, wrote acknowledging a letter from the city clerk re street paving. Received and filed.

B. Williams, secretary of the school board, wrote, pointing out the desirability of having that portion of Beacon Hill park opposite South Park school filled in and levelled off, so as to give the 500 children a recreation ground.

Ald. Humphrey said there was little likelihood of their being any funds available, but he would move the reference of the letter to the park committee. That course was adopted.

J. P. Walls, solicitor for William Sargison, wrote making a formal demand for the latter's salary while engineer at the Yates street pumping station and threatening a legal action if his demands were not complied with. Received and filed.

W. K. Bull presented his report on the special school election held yesterday, giving the same figures as printed in the Times yesterday. The report was ordered spread on the minutes.

Ald. Baker's motion re the manner in which the Douglas street sewer is to be constructed, came up, and Ald. Ledingham raised a point of order. He said they were proceeding illegally, being as a matter of fact just where they started.

Ald. Baker declared the motion entirely in order. In the different stages through which the matter had passed the council had not for a moment overstepped its rights. He also advanced the general arguments against the day work system.

Ald. Ledingham said he had private legal advice to the effect that the council could do public work by contract or day labor, and that the council did not have the legal right to pass a by-law making the contract system the only one.

Ald. Humphrey said that the legal advice amounted to nothing without the names of the solicitors.

Ald. Munn did not regard the objection of Ald. Ledingham as material. He believed they were on the right track. He pointed out the general desire for commissioners on the part of the people, and stated what the course of the commissioners was.

The mayor ruled the motion to be in order, and Ald. Ledingham said he was making a mistake by so doing.

Ald. Baker said that if Ald. Ledingham had any private information he should give it up.

Ald. Baker said that the original action had not been taken after the posting of a notice as required by law, that it was illegal and that every action taken after that was illegal.

Ald. Baker declared that a report of a committee did not require a notice, and this matter had come up in a report. The motion was then put and carried.

Ald. Wilson said in reference to a letter published in the Times last evening that he believed that the writer was laboring under a misapprehension. This work on Douglas street was really not civic work. Legally the city was merely acting as the agent for the property-owners on the street. The councilmen really wanted to have the work done by day labor, but could not see their way to it.

Ald. Humphrey said that there was more work to be done, and if the property owners on any given street would all subscribe to a proposition to have the work done by day labor he would go in for it.

The finance committee presented two reports, one appropriating $2780.27 out of the general revenue and the other appropriating $874.30 out of the electric light fund. They took the usual course. The street committee presented a report covering some minor improvements and it was received and filed.

Ald. Ledingham brought up the matter of the tramway company collecting two fares to the exhibition grounds. Under section 24 of the act they had the right to collect but one fare inside the city limits, yet here they were only carrying people as far as Jubilee Hospital for one fare whereas the should carry them to the city limits which were marked there by the Foul Bay road. He moved that they be warned not to collect two fares inside the city limits.

Mayor Teague said they would get over the matter by making the collections beyond the city limits.

Ald. Baker seconded the motion and requested that at the same time the company be asked to carry people to the grounds which were but a short distance beyond the Foul Bay road for one fare. He expressed the hope that they would do so.

Mayor Teague said he had had several conferences with Major Dupont who said he would grant a five cent fare if the city would replank Rock Bay bridge. (Laughter.)

Ald. Ledingham said he sent a man out over the line to test the matter and Foul Bay road on one fare. However, one of the aldermen had just pointed out to him the fact that while section 24 said only a fare could be collected it did not say what the fare should amount to. Possibly a "fare" was defined somewhere else in the act, but he had not had time to look the matter up.

The motion with the amendment of Ald. Baker was then put and carried and the council adjourned.

AN ARREST.

IN LIFE'S JOURNEY.

Had Taken the Wrong Road.

Endured Many Trials and Sufferings.

Heard of the Glad News of Paine's Celery Compound.

The Cured Man's Honest Testimony.

He Urges All Sufferers to Use the Medicine that Gave Him New Life.

An important arrest in life's journey! A man saved who had travelled far on the road that leads to the silent, dark grave. His trials and sufferings were heavy and severe; he had made many efforts to rid himself of the shackles and chains that bound him, but for long months his efforts were futile.

While on the great highway of disease and suffering Mr. John A. Church, of Coldbrook, N. S., heard the glad news of victories won over disease by Paine's Celery Compound; his heart bounded with joy and fresh hope, and he lost no time in testing the virtues of nature's great healer.

The first bottle produced a great change and warranted Mr. Church in continuing with the medicine. After using nine bottles of the great Compound a thorough cure was effected and a new lease of life was obtained.

Before hearing of Paine's Celery Compound Mr. Church was literally robbed of his money, as he bought medicines of all kinds that proved useless and worthless. His experience is of great value to every sick and suffering man and woman in Canada. He writes thus:

"It is with pleasure that I give testimony in favor of your Paine's Celery Compound. In the spring of 1892 I had an attack of la grippe which put me in such a condition that I could not sleep or eat. I was completly run down, had extreme nervous prostration and lay for ... days in a most hopeless state.

"After spending all my money for medicines, which did little good, I gave up to die, when one day a paper on Paine's Celery Compound was brought to me. I at once procured the medicine, and derived great benefit from the first bottle. I slept better, ate better and digestion improved. After using nine bottles I feel like a new man. I can truly say that Paine's Celery Compound snatched me from the grave and gave me a new lease of life.

"I earnestly urge all sufferers to use Paine's Celery Compound, feeling sure it will cure them. Do not spend your money for medicines that cannot cure you."

tables will be that the exhibit this year is above the average. In the industrial department a great improvement is apparent. In our main building in former years space was given to this branch, but this year the applications made for room being so numerous it was found necessary to erect a new building. A building 50 feet by 100 feet is now occupied by machinery, carriages, etc., and is now filled to its capacity; and you will readily see in passing through that building the necessity for such accommodation.

It would take too much time to refer to each department, but there are some features of the show that cannot be overlooked, as in these great advancement has been made. Especially may be noted the exhibit of cattle and horses, which constitutes the most attractive features of the exhibition. You will find all the classes well represented. The recent importation of thoroughbred and standard bred horses will compare favorably with any exhibit in the Dominion. In the cattle, also, a decided improvement in breeding is noticeable, and I am glad to see our stock-raisers taking such an interest in this matter. There is one exhibit which cannot be overlooked, and that is the one shown by the manager of the Experimental Farm, Mr. Sharpe, of Agassiz. I ask the attention of the visitors to this display of apples, potatoes, etc., which are new to this country and show what can be grown in this province. The purpose of the farm is experimental, as its name implies; by their efforts they are able to inform the agriculturist as to what kinds of products are the most suitable for this climate and soil. The object is a most laudable one, and cannot but commend itself to all who take an interest in such matters.

While we refer to these things with pride there are features to my mind that are not satisfactory as far as the quantity produced is concerned. With a knowledge of our resources and favorable climate, it must be apparent that the pursuit of farming is not followed to an extent commensurate with the demands by the people in the way of natural products. Cheese in limited quantity is manufactured here, while it is a well-known fact that a large quantity of it is imported to this province for our use. On inquiry I find that about $1,500 is paid out daily in this province for butter imported. The article is brought in from the eastern provinces and the neighboring states in large quantities. This should not be, with the large amount of pasturage in our valleys and mountain sides we should, by proper and frugal farming, put an end to the importation of this article; and if we were to compare the price of butter paid here with the other povinces of the Dominion it would be at once apparent that dairying should here be a profitable industry.

I might refer to other branches of farming which might be followed to a greater extent with profit to the farmer as well as advantage to the other residents of the province. One is the raising of hogs in this locality. We import the greater part consumed and this is obtained from the United States or Ontario, either cured or uncured. The price is such as to give ample profit to anyone taking up this branch of farming. We might make a further comparison as to the advantages of this country as to its soil and climate. In the matter of cultivating hay, the soil produces from two and a half to three tons per acre, and is sold at $15 to $20 per ton. Of potatoes we can raise from five to ten tons per acre, while it is a well-known fact that oats will yield as high as 100 to 125 bushels to the acre, and wheat as high as 60 bushels has been produced. I might go further in this line, but this will suffice to indicate what a fertile land we have. And with a climate unequalled elsewhere this country is destined to be the home of many thousands of those who will follow the noble calling of tillers of the soil.

With these advantages this country must improve annually in its agricultural exhibits and as a community we must encourage farming, since there is no branch of industry so reliable as that of farming. And, now, as we have not only our local demands, but a trade opened across the Pacific with a people numbering five hundred millions, who dare say that the outlook and prospects of British Columbia are not bright?

I might refer to some new features of our exhibition. We have arranged for special days, and the programme will be a suitable one for each day represented by nationalities and societies. To-morrow being America's day, we expect a large representation of our American friends with us. We have, I am glad to say, some exhibits from the American side, and we are glad to have this competition, as it is only by competition that we hope to obtain success. There will likely be a large attendance from the Sound cities to view our exhibits, and as the Interstate Fair is now going on at Tacoma they will be able to compare our exhibits with theirs, and we hope they will be favorably impressed. With our association our America's day is imbodied in one word, "friendship." Friendship makes no distinction of class of country; friendship knows no international line. Thursday is Canada's day, and we hope to have a large turnout. We shall have lacrosse and other game fitting for the occasion. Friday is selected as Children's day. We are under a debt of gratitude to the teachers of the public schools for taking such an interest in this matter. We hope the children will be pleased with what they see and that it may prove a benefit to them to be with us. Saturday is Societies' day, and the various societies have taken hold of this matter in earnest and have consented to be with us in a body on Saturday. The association feels that this act on the part of the societies is based upon the right motive, and will assist in making our exhibition a success. As president of the society I must thank the citizens' committee who have worked so hard and have taken such a keen interest in the exhibition at this time. They have provided us with a programme of sports and games which will make the show I am sure attractive and I am sure that before the week has passed by no one will regret the interest he has taken and the time spent in making our fair the most successful in the annals of our association.

One more duty remains for me to perform at this time, and I assure you it is a pleasant one. That is to ask his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor to address you and declare the exhibition open. I wish to introduce him to-day in a double capacity. First as Lieutenant-Governor of the province, the highest provincial position any man can attain, and one he fills to the satisfaction of all, both in a political and a social way. The other capacity to which I refer is that of a pioneer of British Columbia. As his Honor walked through the building to-day and viewed our exhibits his mind must have turned back over the long period since he first set foot in our province, some 35 years ago. I am sure while viewing the exhibits of the manufacturers and the products of the soil he will feel that they will compare favorably with any former period. I have now pleasure in introducing to you Hon. Mr. Dewdney, Lieutenant-Governor who will address you and declare the 18th exhibition of British Columbia open.

His Honor then briefly expressed the pleasure it afforded him to attend and open the fair this year. He remarked on the visible advance the association had made, which augured well for the prosperity and well being of every one. He then declared the exhibition formally open, and the public were left to inform themselves of what Victoria and district were capable of producing.

The parade of live stock at three o'clock to-day was interfered with by the rain, but as there will be a daily parade, the loss is not so great as it would otherwise have been.

THE DECORATIONS.

Large crowds turned out last evening to see the decorations and illuminations of the city. Two rows of Chinese lanterns had been strung along the main streets, which, with the illuminations of many of the stores, made a very brilliant scene. During the day very elaborate decorations had been made, the most noticeable being the New England restaurant, the Yates street fire hall, Moody's block, T. N. Hibben & Co.'s, Thos. Shotbolt, Franck's grocery, the Pritchard house and Campbell's corner. At the New England a canopy of evergreens, with flags, bunting and Chinese lanterns interspersed, almost hid the handsome four story block and was greatly admired. At the fire hall bright streamers ran from the sidewalk to the tower, with here and there a bunch of colored electric globes and many other devices tastefully arranged. The firemen have also erected an arch at the corner of Yates and Broad streets. The committee, consisting of Lieut.-Governor Dewdney, Dr. G. L. Milne, T. J. Burnes and J. H. Falconer, appointed to award the prizes for the best decorated buildings, last evening drove around the city and viewed the different buildings.

The rain will prevent a repetition of last evening's illumination.

NANAIMO NEWS.

Coal Shipments and Customs Returns for September.

Nanaimo, Oct. 2.—The shipments of coal to foreign ports during the past month have been very favorable and show an increase of nearly seven thousand tons over the previous month, which, considering the unsatisfactory condition of the market, is looked upon as very promising. The present month should be a big one for the New Vancouver Coal company, as there are at present three vessels in, with prospects of two more steamers this week and several more vessels on the way up. The coal sent to foreign ports is as follows: New Vancouver Coal Co., 20,275; Wellington, 21,062; Union, 19,900 tons.

The customs returns for September were: Duty collected, $4272.20; sick mariners' dues, $440.34; making a total of $4712.54. The imports amounted to $13,104, of which $250 was free goods.

It is understood that the New Vancouver Coal company are endeavoring to create a market for their coal on Puget Sound.

W. Bowater challenges Walter Pride to a quoit match for from $250 to $500 a side.

During the month of September there were registered 16 births, 9 deaths and 3 marriages.

Mr. W. S. Hurst, of Victoria has already settled the claims of Hemens & Co., Mr. Cartney, T. C. Morgan and the Hirst estate.

A foot race of 100 yards has been arranged between A. Thompson and A. Hilbert, the conditions being that the former gives the latter four yards start. Both men are in excellent condition, so that a good race is expected. The event will take place on the Caledonian grounds at 6 o'clock to-morrow evening.

Cable News.

London, Oct. 2.—It is reported that financial ad commercial circles have lost confidence in the management of the Bank of England to such an extent that the general court or directors has agreed to institute an inquiry into the relations existing between Mr. Hope, the late cashier, and certain customers of the institution and into the action of the bank in consequence of these relations. The fact has developed that in adition to the million and a quarter of dollars that the bank lost through the irregularities of its late chief cashier, a large number of customers have lost amounts, being induced to invest in stocks that proved worthless. As a result the honor of the bank has been seriously and adversely affected and an inquiry has been reluctantly agreed to.

It will also be proposed that the minimum of wages be established. The convention will be in session for several days.
